British Association for the Study of the Liver
21-24 September 2021

Virtual Meeting

BASL2021
British Association for the Study of the Liver

@BASLedu

The British Association for the Study of the Liver (BASL) is dedicated to advancing knowledge and understanding of the biology and pathology of the liver for the optimal care of patients. BASL is composed of interested individuals from clinical medicine, clinical and basic research and allied health professions.

The BASL Committee has made the difficult decision to host their Annual Meeting virtually again in 2021. The Annual Meeting is the highlight of the BASL calendar and usually attracts around 400 delegates throughout the week, bringing together clinicians, nurses, scientists and all those interested in liver disease and liver transplantation.

This is the perfect opportunity for the liver industry to virtually come together and share knowledge and collaborate through a virtual platform. Our virtual meeting allows for first-hand experience and exclusive insights from key leaders regarding best practice in managing and outsourcing in clinical trials through testing times, such as the pandemic we are currently living.
